I understand that this email address has been created for public comments on the Microsoft antitrust case.

By its recent actions in the case - dropping the request that Microsoft be broken up - the justice department has shown itself to be completely under the thumb of an administration which cares only about the interests of big business, to the exclusion of anything that could be called "justice."

This is especially, glaringly obvious because the justice department was on the right track - going after Microsoft as hard as it could - under the previous administration.

This is a travesty, a national disgrace, and a course of which the staff of the justice department should be personally ashamed.
